Pre-Modern World History

The 9th grade history course expands on the study of political, economic, cultural, and religious-philosophical systems within human societies, from the Bronze Age to the early medieval period. Students read, discuss and respond to a selection of literature from each culture we study, in addition to a variety of secondary sources and practice in research methods. In the process, we examine questions of group identity and worldview; conceptions of justice and citizenship; and power structures and sources of conflict within societies.
